The Memento for Columbus.

To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR: I have read with some interest the various suggestions of your correspondents in favor of an arch as a memento for Columbus. It strikes me that there would be far more sense in putting the same amount of money into a memorial building or bridge, and thus combine utility with ornament. Such structures can be made fully as ornamental, and can be made to tell the whole story almost at a glance. The building of monuments and arches is a relic of olden times that I think can be improved upon. Above all we don't want any river gods or other heathenish or mythological figures. They smack too much of a barbarous and heathen age, when the lives of millions of human beings were sacrificed to gratify the pride or ambition of some arbitrary monarch, as in the building of the pyramids. Give us the memorials of all great and good men and women who have done anything to benefit mankind, but let them be more in consonance with the enlightened age in which we live. W. C. D.

The First Soldiers Wounded and Killed. To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR:

The first soldier wounded in the war of the rebellion was George A. Wilson, a member of the band of the sixth regiment, Massachusetts. He was wounded while passing through Balti-more at the first call for troops. Ladd and Waitney of the sixth regiment, Massachusetts, were the first soldiers killed in the war. Washington, Jan. 22. Judge MacArthur's Lecture.

The fourth of the series of lectures by Judge MacArthur was delivered last night in Spencerian College ball to a large audience. The lecture covered the law of possession and ownership of personal property. of sales, of sales by samples, the effect of bonds upon prices, the law of stoppage in transitu, of materials and manufactures, of principal and agent and of self-imposed restraint.

How the Body Was Indentified. The dead body of the colored man found in the river at the Independent ice company's wharf vesterday afternoon, as published in the second edition of THE STAR, was removed in the patrol wagon by the police of the fourth precinct to the morgue, where it was discovered that four fingers were missing from the right hand. This was the means of identifying the body. It was that of Fred Lyles, a South Washington negro, who had been employed in a store on 4½ street. About the middle of December he got on a spree and disappeared. He was last seen near the river and it is thought that he accidentally fell overboard and was drowned. The coroner viewed the body and gave a certificate of death, an inquest not being deemed necessary. The remains were removed to the Washington asylum and will probably be interred in potter's field.

Grand Encampment, LO.O.F. At the semi-annual convention of the Grand encampment, I.O.O.F., held last evening, a committee, consisting of Messrs. John T. Given. Thos, W. Fowler, W. W. The Columbus Memorial Arch. To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR:

I am much pleased to learn from yesterday's STAR that the suggestion of a Columbus memorial arch originated in THE STAR and that it has since been urged so ably and with the addition of noble details by Miss Johnston. The time has surely come when the project should take more practical shape than that of a newspaper item, and I should be very glad to assist in any general effort toward bringing the matter be-fore Congress for its action. Whatever be the fate of the fair and its date this at least may be secured by proper legislation promptly car-ried through that on the four hundredth anniversary of the landing of Columbus agreat arch, commemorating that event by every re-source of the sculptor's art and representing the united tribute of all the Americas to his memory, might be dedicated in this the capital city of America's leading nation. Even if its completion required longer time it would, under wise direction, be a constant stimulus to high national ideals of art and to sentiments of the broadest patriotism. Neither Washing-ton itself nor the favored nation to which this beautiful capital belongs can afford to neglect this singularly favorable opportunity for mak-ing an addition to the world's artistic and historic monuments which shall be worthy of America's greatness. | Frank Sewall. | Frank Sewall. | 1331 L street, January 21. |

The Throne of Fame.

A novel entertainment was given at Lincoln music hall last evening for the benefit of the Potomac woman's relief corps. A large audience was present. The Goddess of Fame was represented as summoning to her court the women who had performed some noted deed to present their claims for the crown of fame. Mrs. Annie Garrison took the part of the Goddess of Fame, who was accompanied by twentynine attendants, including two pages, Masters Fay Temple and Ernest Swayze, and the crown bearer, Miss Rena Jordan. The various characters appearing were Louisa Alcott, person-ated by Mrs. Margaret M. L. King; Barbara Freitchie, Mrs. Frances A. Burger; Mary Queen of Scots, Mrs. Kate Kanouse of Iowa, with her maids of honor, Misses Blanche Starkey and Sailie Swayze; Florence Nightingale, Mrs. Mary A. Houghton; Josiah Allen's Wife, Mrs. Mary A. Naylor; Pocahontas, Miss Annie Tichenor; Queen Elizabeth, Mrs. Emma Hart, with Misses Mollie McKee and Fannie Shepley as maids of honor; A Sister of Charity, Miss Rebecca Dewart; Mrs. Partington, Mrs. Lockwood, attended by Ike, Master Clarence Engle; Miriam, Mrs. W. B. Moses; Topsy, Miss Kate Curry; Joan of Arc, Mrs. W. S. Odell; Gail Hamilton, Miss Mollie Reagan; Adelina Patti, Mrs. Annie Roemer Kaspar; Ruth, Miss Mamie Brooks; Christine Nilsson, Miss Bertha Lincoln; Martha Washington, Mrs. L. A. Crandall; Mother Goose, Miss Florence Perry; Alice and Phoebe Cary, Misses Emily and Kathinka Frech; Cleopatra, Miss Hattie Boyden; Isabella of Spain, Mrs. Nellie C. Royce, with Misses Mina Brackett and Carrie Prentice as maids of honor. There were many pretty tableaus and the speeches made were spirited and amusing. The crown was awarded to Isabella of Spain.

A Suspended Sentence.

In the Criminal Court Chief Justice Bingham had before him this morning Richard L. Dean, a police officer, convicted on Monday of an assault, and his counsel, Mr. Albert Sellers, asked a suspension of sentence. The court said that taking the policeman's own evidence he was guilty of an assault. He had no good reason to throw his baton at the boy and the injury might have been serious. In view of the recommendation to mercy and the officer's good standing he would impose the same sentence as was imposed in the Police Court— $10 fine-and would suspend sentence during good behavior.

Bad Faith.

To the Editor of THE EVENING STAR In the advertisement for the sale of course tickets for the Stoddard lectures the managers say: "The rule which justice to the public has imperatively demanded in every city will here be strictly observed, viz., no more than ten tickets for any course to any applicant." Hundreds of ladies and gentlemen, confiding in the truthfulness of this announcement, came through the storm yesterday morning and formed in line before J. F. Ellis & Co.'s music store. For two hours the doors were kept closed while, as it was currently alleged outside, an official of the Congregational church was in the store selecting a large portion of the best seats in the church for both courses. CURED BY CUTICURA.

I have used your CUTICURA REMEDIES in two cases where it proved to be successful. The first was in the case of a boy a year and a half old. His face and body were in a terrible condition, the former being completely covered with sores. I took him to the Mas-sens Sulphur Springs, but he did not improve any. I was then advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which I did. He took one and one-half bottles of CUTICUA RESOLVENT, when his skin was as smooth as could be, and is today. I used the CUTICURA on his sores and the CUTICURA SOAP in washing him.

He is now five years of age and all right. The other case was a disease of the scalp, which was cured by washing with the CUTICURA SOAP and rubbing in the CUTICURA, one bottle of CUTICUA RESOLVENT being used. They have proved successful in every case. It is surprising how rapidly a child will improve
